UNOFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SAYS ISSUE HAS BEEN SQUARELY JOINED WITH SERBIA.

CONFIRM SLAV VICTORY

Austrian Forces In Galicia May Have to Fall Back On Lemburg as Result of Recent Reverse.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 13.—The issue between Bulgaria and Serbia apparently has been joined squarely. It is reported unofficially that Bulgaria has declared war. Little is known here of the progress of hostilities between the combatants beyond the fact that Bulgaria has invaded Serbia and is said to have suffered severe reverses in the open engagements.

In northern Serbia the Austro-German invaders are meeting with stubborn resistance.

Confirm Slav Success.

The report from Petrograd yesterday of an important Russian success in Galicia has been confirmed officially. General Ivanoff has broken the Austro-German front along the Stripa, taking 2,000 prisoners and many guns. The Slav victory is deemed as definite as is indicated by the official announcement the Austrians may be compelled to fall back on Lemburg. Such a retreat would be certain to have considerable moral effect in the Balkans, where the continued neutrality of several states is believed to be due largely to the severe reverses suffered by Russia during its summer campaign in the Dvinsk region definite but in decisive fighting continued with the defensive shifting frequently from one side to the other. Field Marshal Hindenburg evidently intends to continue his attacks, as it is reported reinforcements to his army are on the way to the Dvinsk front.

French Resume Offensive.

From the western front come reports bearing evidence that the French are resuming the offensive in the Champagne.

French gains slow but steady progress accompanied by the capture of few prisoners and heavy losses for the Germans. A German correspondent at the front states that a great fighting in which all arms seems to be engaged, is now proceeding in the Champagne, which is regarded as indicating that the French intend to resume the offensive.

Beyond the announcement made by French Minister of War, the French chamber little has been done, but as yet no extent of the aid to be given by the extensive powers to Serbia in resisting the Austro-German effort to clear the road to Constantinople. It is reported officially, however, that Italy is not able to spare any troops for this purpose.

Serbs Cheat Advance.

Berlin, Oct. 13.—The Austro-German invasion of Serbia is making progress, the German press announced today, though the Serbians, in their resistance are interfering to some extent with the advance. A village and other positions to the south of Belgrade have been captured.

Declare War on Serbia.

London, Oct. 13.—Bulgaria has declared war on Serbia, says a Central News dispatch from Paris.

The decision of Bulgaria, the twelfth nation to enter the war, to join the ranks of the belligerents on the side of Germany, Austria and Turkey, was reached after months of secret negotiations for months between representatives of the Tenthonic allies and the quadruple entente. Each side offered tempting inducements in an effort to gain another ally, but the Bulgarian government finally decided Germany and her friends had made the higher bid.

Bulgaria's military strength on a peace footing is only about 65,000, but in time of war she is able to put into the field something like 300,000 men.

Call Report Previews.

Berlin, via London, Oct. 13.—The Vossische Zeitung republishes a dispatch to the Zurich Die Nachrichten to the effect that Bulgaria declared war on Serbia Monday, with this comment:

"We can say this report is in form premature. It is a fact, however, that Serbo-Bulgarian relations have grown so much more acute in the past few hours that the armed conflict between Serbia and Bulgaria must appear unavoidable near."

Will Be Posted Tonight.

Bucharest, Oct. 12, via Paris, Oct. 13.—A dispatch from the Bulgarian frontier states that a declaration of war against Serbia will be posted throughout Bulgaria tonight.

LONDON IN GLOOM; ALL LIGHTS DARK

New Lighting Regulations by Which Every Flicker Is Obscured, Now in Effect.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Oct. 13.—London's new lighting regulations went into force today and a city of blinded windows, screened skylights, shrouded street lamps and generally subdued and smothered appearance have taken on an even darker hue.

Londoners have grown accustomed to the funeral aspect of the city, but it is none the less strange and disquieting to a foreigner to view one looks for the blazes of light which used to flood Piccadilly circus and the Leicester Square, and unless he is used to finding his way around the city at night he is likely to become lost in obscurity as completely as completed and building as that of traditional London.

The stricter regulations recently issued are now in effect over an area which comprises nearly seven hundred square miles, with population of about 7,000,000 persons. According to notice, bright lighting premises of all description must be shaded, or windows screened. No bright light may be cast in "any direction." In railroad carriages which provided with blinds, those blinds must be lowered except when the train is at a standstill at the station.

DOUBLE U. S. FLEET WITHIN FIVE YEARS IS DEFENSE PROGRAM

Secretary Daniels Contemplates Building Fifteen Dreadnaughts, 100 Submarines and Seventy Destroyers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Oct. 13.—A new American fleet of dreadnaughts, battle cruisers, submarines and other necessary auxiliaries is contemplated by Secretary Daniels. A five-year naval program is proposed at the end of which time from fifteen to twenty dreadnaughts and battle cruisers, nearly 100 submarines, about seventy destroyers and several scout cruisers and a proportionate number of auxiliaries would be added to the present fleet. With the seventy submarines already built and building, the total undersea craft would total about 170 in five years.

The entire program, for the first year, which would include provision for at least eight thousand additional men for the ships, would be estimated cost approximately $248,000,000 or about $100,000,000 increase over last year.

President Wilson and Secretary Daniels agreed that it will be necessary to practically double the present fleet in the next five years in order to be adequately prepared for defense.

He brought first hand reports of the fighting between the Singalese and Mohammedans during the second and third week of September.

"The fighting was strictly a religious affair," said Dr. Smith. "No demonstrations were made against the British government by either side, but the authorities stepped in and with the aid of the 78th regiment of Punjabis, reinforced by citizen soldiers, the rioters were subdued. While it lasted, however, there were numerous massacres and thousands of Mohammedans gathered in Colombo for safety."

They were made by fitting freight steamers and building over the false woodwork and canvas so they resembled war vessels. They are now being dismantled because the Germans discovered the ruse.

ONE MORE VICTORY TODAY AND BOSTON WILL ANNEX TITLE

victory today at Philadelphia for the Boston Red Sox over Alexander the lone hope of the Phillies, will make them world champions and the American league will once again be topped over the National. For the third straight time the Boston Sox downed the fighting Phils by the same score of 2 to 1 which thoroughly convinces that the two teams are about as equally matched as possible, and the games will go to the team which is lucky enough to obtain the "break" of the game.

In the games of the series the Phillies have been weaker than the Sox in just one department, and that is hitting in the pinch. They have been good, but their hitting, like bases better had equality, as good pitching, when hits meant more, the Phillips lacked the final punch.

Since the games have been decided by such a narrow margin, Moran has constantly pursued the policy of sacrificing to put a player on second, and his judgment has been good, but the Phillips batsmen so far have been unable to clout the ball when players were roofing on the sacks. They have been good, but when hits meant more, the Phillips lacked the final punch.

The Red Sox park also handicapped the Phillips, for several drives were outs that would have won the game for the Nationals had they been in their home park. Chalmers and Shore were the pitchers, and nothing Chalmers, the losing pitcher, hurled better ball than the awkward Chalmers pitched unbeatable ball, for the Red Sox first run was truly a duke, scratched home on a pass. As on Monday, Duffy Lewis was the hero of the game, for he delivered the hit in the pinch that won the game for the Sox, probably the series, as the Phillips seem hopelessly gone with out Alexander hitting the ball today Chalmers struck out six and Shore four, and the hits went seven for Philadelphia and eight for Boston, and the Phillips' hits were hard clouts.

The Red Sox got away to the front in the third inning when Barry, first up, walked with two strikes coming before the last ball. Cady singled on a bunt hit and Shore was at bat. A wild decision was reversed at this point, the Sox might have had two runs instead of one. Shore struck and Hooper was at bat. He bounded one down which went for a single and Barry scored. Speaker

GAME WITH PURDUE TEST FOR BADGERS

Juneau Expects Hard Game With Indiana Team Next Saturday—
Alumni to see Minnesota Game.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Oct. 12.—The Badgers are going through a hard week of work in preparation for the game with Purdue at Lafayette on Saturday. Coaches Juneau, Driver and Wilson see a heard game ahead, with the game, for he delivered the hit in the pinch that won the game for the Sox, probably the series, as the Phillips seem hopelessly gone with out Alexander hitting the ball today Chalmers struck out six and Shore four, and the hits went seven for Philadelphia and eight for Boston, and the Phillips' hits were hard clouts.

Nothing in the test being centered on the Illinois-Ohio State battle at Urbana this week. If the Badgers can win from Wile's easterners next week by a better score than the Illini eleven can do this week, the dope on the conference race can be figured out to some extent. Chicago can be figured out to some extent. Chicago is feared because it is to be played on Stagg field. Followers are preparing to make the trip to the Chicago game in a big social train. The university wise club will give a concert at the mass meeting on Oct. 30th, in the evening.

Furthermore, the Minnesota contest on Nov. 20th is calling all Alumni out, for on that day Wisconsin will elaborate its annual homecoming. Charles B. Rogers, '93, Alumni president, is in the city making arrangements.

The Wisconsin boxing commission has notified Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane to appear in Milwaukee to answer charges of stalling and delaying the show on September 21. Ritchie Mitchell, the champion's opponent, on that date, has also been requested to appear before the commission to answer similar charges.

Kilbane probably will ignore the request, as he is booked to battle Cal Delaney at Akron on this day. If the commission decides that either Kilbane or Mitchell, or both boxers, were guilty of delaying the show as charged, suspensions from Wisconsin rings ranging from six months to a year may be handed down. The boxer in question was pretty close, resulting in a split verdict by the experts.

It would not be at all surprising if this year's world series would bring forth a hero from the ranks whose ability to shine has been doubtful. Sometimes the stars don't shine in a world series. Ty Cobb, for instance, has been in three of them and in not one did he distinguish himself. On the other hand, there was George Krol, an even ordinary player for the White Sox during the regular season, who had a whole lot to do with winning the series for the White Sox in 1906. It was his hitting which helped to bring about the victory, and in the regular season Krol was a very ordinary batter. Last season the wonderful slugging of Hank Gowdy, who had the look of man on the mound, the Philadelphia fans are hoping to stem the tide, and the next game will be played at Boston. The next three straight games to win the series now, which has never been done but once in baseball history.

Recently compiled records show that Pop Geers, the veteran Grand circuit driver, has won more than $1,000,000 in purses since he began to handle the reins back in 1900.

ROOSEVELT'S ADDRESS.

With his characteristic aptitude for calling a spade a spade and a club a club, Colonel Roosevelt spoke last evening at the Knights of Columbus meeting at Carnegie Hall New York. It was Columbus Day, a holiday in New York, and in excepts from his address it is quickly seen that the doughty Colonel, erstwhile elephant hunter, discoverer of the River of Doubt, Bull Moose tamer and former president did not lose an opportunity to pay his respects to the hyphenated American.

"The foreign born population of this country must be an Americanized population—no other kind can fight the battles of America either in war or in peace," Colonel Roosevelt asserted that it was the duty of immigrants to learn English and it was the duty of America to provide the means to learn English. He suggested also adoption of a military system similar to the Swiss.

"If an immigrant is not fit to become a citizen, he should not be allowed to come here," said Colonel Roosevelt. "If he is fit he should be given all the rights to earn his own livelihood and to better himself that any man can have."

Colonel Roosevelt said that just as democratic America required that church and state should be separate, that there should be no distinction of nationality. "There is no room in this country for hyphenated Americans," he said. "When I refer to hyphenated Americans, I do not refer to naturalized Americans. Some of the very best Americans that I have ever known were born abroad. But a hyphenated American is not an American at all."

Speaking of preparedness, Colonel Roosevelt said that even in time of peace industrial disturbances should be eliminated. "The strike situation in the United States at this time is a scandal to the country as a whole and discreditable alike to employer and employee," he said.

"I am certain that the only permanently safe attitude for this country as regards national preparedness for self-defense, is along the lines of universal service on the Swiss model. Switzerland is the most democratic of nations. Its army is the most democratic army in the world. There isn't a touch of militarism or aggressiveness about Switzerland. It has been found as a matter of actual practical experience in Switzerland that the universal military training has made a very marked increase in social efficiency and in the ability of the man thus trained to do well for himself in industry."

HARVEST PLENTIFUL.

This year's harvest of apples is most plentiful. It seems unfortunate that the surplus supply can not be made use of instead of being a drug on the farmers' hands. Hundreds of bushels of delicious eating apples are rotting in the orchards throughout the country and if some means could be found to bring them into the city markets it might help to reduce this high cost of living here so much aout. However, city ordinances and state laws make it hard to dispose of these surplus stocks by selling them from carts from house to house or in a public market and the use of preservatives being forbidden by law they can not be turned into cider to "keep the long winter evenings through" as in the days of our ancestors. In fact the old days when a jug of cider, a plate of doughnuts and a pan of nuts was the delight of the family, sitting before a roaring open fire in a memory of the past. Evening parties now demand much more new-fangled foods, even sandwiches are not sufficient unless a dainty salad, coffee and ice cream and cake are also provided. Grates are now "gas logs" if even used at all and the apple barrel and the cider keg find no place in the modern cellar. With the candles they have been relegated to the echoes of the past and the modern generation does not know what they are missing. Meanwhile the apple crop lies rotting on the ground.

BASEBALL KING.

Talk as you like the sport-loving American people watch with interest the results of the national sport—baseball—with just as much interest as of yore. In fact some baseball writers state that the season just closed was the best in the history of the game. However, some teams have not done so well for with three major leagues in the field, three teams in many cities to choose from, the one in the lead always receives the fans' support. In Boston on Monday and Tuesday of this week nearly a hundred thousand paid admissions past the turnstiles while the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Nationals battled for the world's championship. Football comes later, but it does not evoke the enthusiasm that the national pastime does, and does not last half as long. Baseball is king.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

SIR JOHN JELLINE
IS NOT WELL KNOWN
BUT IS EFFICIENT

Description Given of British Commander of Invincible Fleet—Was Marked Man in Service.

(By Associated Press.)

London, Oct. 12.—Of all the great leaders of the war Sir John Jellicoe, commanding the British Grand Fleet, is least known to the world, and his is the portrait which receives the most cheers when it is thrown onto a screen at a London theatre. But the British public knows nothing of him except that he is the fighting commander of the "invisible" power of the British navy.

When war was threatening it is related that a meeting of Admiralty Lords and others who would have the say was held to decide who, in case of hostilities, should command the British fleet. The opinions ran something like this, it is said:—

"Jellicoe! He has the brains."

"Jellicoe! He is young. He has the health to endure the strain. He has the nerve."

"Jellicoe! He has been tried in every branch of the service."

"Jellicoe! His fellow officers believe in him."

It was that sort of recommendation that helped. When the great war came he was given supreme command and the rest left to him.

From the time he was a midshipman Jellicoe had been marked man in the service, said one of his admirals. He is one of his admirals who seem to be born with a circless energy. No matter what difficulties arise, he is always smiling. Both he and Beatty were in the first attempt to relieve the Peking legations at the time of the Boxer Rebellion. Captain Seymour's chief of staff, when he was wounded and the little band of seamen were surrounded by Boxers, and it looked as if every minute might be their last, was smiling as cheerfully as he had been on the quarter-deck.

Nothing ever seems to ruffle his equanimity. His personal charm would win him his way anywhere; but when you have served with him, then you realize what a master of his profession he is.

Never Leaves Fleet.

Only the commander-in-chief's flag which she flies distinguishes the flagship, which is in the center of the fleet, from the rest of the gray fighters in their precise lines at anchor in harbor. Sir John takes his exercise and his holidays pacing the quarter-deck. He never leaves the fleet even for a few hours. He commands-in-chief is one man who must take no risk of being absent if the German fleet should come out. Not tall, spare, his face tanned by the breezes, he walks up and down the deck, sometimes with one of his aides or with his chief of staff, again with one of his admirals. Everyone in the fleet is familiar with the quick, light step of that slight figure with a smile always under his arm. If a ship should come in anchor with a boat out of line he knows it. All his fighting ships are under his eye and every human being on the fleet feels his personal presence.

Commander's Office.

Descent a ladder under the shadow of two great 13.5-inch guns and the visitor is in a large cabin extending from side to side of the ship, which in a house would be called the dining-room. Here when he was in port in time of peace the commander-in-chief would give his official dinners. In time of war the cabin is partly screened off as there is more room than Sir John can find need for meals. All of this is what would be called in a house the sitting-room. The furnishings are of the simplest. Everything inflammable could be removed promptly in case of action. The few names in the visitors' book on a table were suggestive of the fleet's isolation from intercourse with the rest of the world. One name was that of Sir John's son, who need not be mentioned.

The visitor looked about in vain for signs of the immense amount of official detail which would be necessary for the local port of a vast campaign. Some staff officers and a few were all. The flagship is kept cleared for action in this as in all other respects. The actual directing of the three thousand ships and auxiliaries of the British navy is carried on in a space occupied in a New York office by a lawyer and two or three clerks. An orderly went and came with messages from the wireless room which had space enough for the wireless operator to stand and no more.

Officers said that it was difficult to contemplate how such a naval campaign as the British in this war could have ever been conducted without the wireless. Sir John could talk with any ship, whether of Heligoland or Iceland. He knew what each man was doing. Let a German cruiser show her nose in the North Sea and he had the news in a minute or two after the signal was sighted.

"He makes all seem simple and easy," said one of his admirals. "That is his gift—it is the essential gift for one who has such a great responsibility."

Beatty, who sank the Blucher, is the youngest of Sir John's young admirals, forty-four years of age, boyish and quick. Sturdee, victor of the Falkland Islands battle, smooth-shaven, as smiling as Sir John, is quiet-spoken and rather studious in appearance, he is an expert in naval strategy.

Promotion System.

In the British navy promotion is by selection up to the grade of captain. A man with a single flag in his record as Lieutenant must wait on others before he can become Lieutenant-commander. Those with perfect records in each grade are canvassed by boards and those who have shown industry and initiative are chosen to cover the heads of less active men. The aim is to apply the system of civil life where ability, uses and meritocracy must be content with the lower rungs of the ladder.

Jellicoe, Sturdee, and Beatty entered the navy as boys of fourteen. None had any particular influence; they made their way by industry. Sir John has served in every branch. He is regarded as possibly the ablest ordnance expert in the navy, which means that he knows the guns which he will fire in action.

Notwithstanding his amiability, all agree that he has only one certain success. If an officer fails he is superseded. Most of these young admirals sleep on the bridge even in harbor. For the last ten years the average British naval officer has worked harder than men of any profession in civil life. They have kept up the grinding drill which continued since the war began.

"We can take no risks," one of them said. "Our responsibility to the nation requires that we neglect nothing that devotion to duty will accomplish. Most of these crews you see have been at their posts whether gun-pointing or passing ammunition for five or six years. We want each man to be letter perfect in his part."

Firing is Good.

In all actions this far the firing has begun at extreme range—eighteen thousand yards. At that distance a Dreadnaught painted the color of the sea is a vague speck. But one fortunate hit may be vital, and either wants to get that fortunate hit first.

The accuracy of fire both at the Falkland Islands and in the battle of the Dogger Bank had been as good as at battle practice.

See among his admirals, Sir John Jellicoe seems the head of a family.

In frequent consultation, they know one another in the fellowship of their confine existence.

If he had anything to say to one of them or they to him,

the definiteness of their remarks and the completeness of his replies were impressive. Decision seemed automatic with him.

He showed the visitors over the flagship himself, calling attention to things which he thought would interest

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST AMONG BOYS PLANNED

ANOTHER MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN AMONG YOUNGER BOYS WILL BE ATTEMPTED.

TEAMS ARE SELECTED

Seek Members Between Ages of Ten and Eighteen Years—Red and Blue Teams Will Compete.

The Young Men's Christian Association will witness another membership campaign. The new contest will be run by the boys of the new department under the supervision of H. J. Center, the boys' secretary. In a recent inter-city membership contest all the young boys of Janesville were not seen and talked with about joining the association, so there is still a large field for the boys to work in. The contest will be known as the Red and Blue membership campaign for boys between the ages of ten and eighteen years taking them from the graded and high schools, as also working boys. This contest will begin Friday, October 15, and close November 5. Every member will be on a team and each one will have an equal chance to work for the prizes that will be offered. The captains for the two teams that have been selected are Elton Jenkins, captain for the Red, and Luther Mills, captain for the Blue.

The two teams will be scored on two finest thermometers which will be placed in the rooms of their department. Points will be counted as to the amount of membership fees that are brought in. Each dollar brought in will count one point if it is on a new member, and on renewals a half point will be given for each dollar. Every boy who brings in ten members will be invited for a trip to Madison. Nov. 20, to see the Minnesota-Wisconsin football game, all expenses paid. The winning team will also be given a turkey dinner, while the losers will eat a bean dinner.

The members of the two teams are as follows:

JUMPS FROM WINDOW AT MERCY HOSPITAL

John Pfleffer Escapes Nurses, Going Through Upper Frame of Window—Caught After Chase.

John Pfleffer of Milton was taken to the state hospital for the insane yesterday afternoon by authorities from the asylum, after Pfleffer made a desperate attempt to escape from the Mercy Hospital about noon by jumping out of the window attired in his night clothes. Since the opening Sunday, when four physicians saved Pfleffer's life after he had slashed his throat with a razor, the patient has been unruly at the hospital.

Some time yesterday Pfleffer became violent and arose from his bed and managed to jump through the upper frame of an open window on the first floor from the ground. The upper frame of the window was lowered and it is considered a mystery how Pfleffer in his weak physical condition from the wound, could climb through the opening some feet from the ground. Pfleffer is in bare feet and scarcely dressed, was seen to jump across streets for several blocks before he was caught and brought back to the hospital. Officials at the state hospital were notified and sent an officer to this city to take Pfleffer back to the asylum.

Nothing could be learned at the hospital if Pfleffer had attacked any of the nurses before making his escape.

THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL

"Let Us Meet and Counsel Together."

CONVENTION OF STATE FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS AT LA CROSSE
ON OCTOBER 6, 7 AND 8

By invitation of the Twentieth Century Club and the La Crosse Women's club, about three or four hundred women from all over the state gathered in La Crosse for their 19th annual convention. The meetings were held in the First Congregational church and luncheons and dinners were served to the visiting ladies in the Masonic Temple. The Art League of this city was represented by Pember and Mrs. Nurmi. The chief event of the morning session on Wednesday, the opening day, was the address by the President, Mrs. D. O. Kinsman, of Whitewater. This lady is a woman of great personal charm and is well known by the club women of Janesville who have heard her in addresses on several occasions. In the afternoon, the main speaker was Miss Zona Gale of Portage, who had the topic of "Little Town Conference." In the evening, a public mass meeting was held at the local high school auditorium, at which Mr. Chas. Zublin of Boston was the speaker. After the evening's program, a reception was given in the gymnasium of the high school to the delegates visiting the club women. On Thursday forenoon, the line of thought was along educational lines. A talk on the Standardization of Music Teaching was given by Mrs. Elizabeth Bentliff of Ripon. Mrs. Bentliff was formerly a resident of Janesville and what she had to say was listened to with special interest by the local clubs.

Miss Ellen Sabin of Milwaukee gave a report on the work of the Department of Education and a general discussion was held on the relation of society to the subnormal child and legislation along these lines.

The Thursday afternoon, the work of the American Red Cross was given by Mr. J. J. Connor, director of the Central Division of the American Red Cross, and a paper on Literature and Life was given by Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of Minneapolis, chairman of Literature department of the General Federation of Women's clubs.

At the close of this meeting, a general conference was held by the chairman of the different state committees.

The evening session on Thursday was held in the Lacrosse theater and was preceded by a program of musical selection.

The report of the council meeting at Portland was given by Miss Lulu Stearns, who is always interesting and logical in her remarks. She calls herself facetiously as "The woman with a foghorn voice," but what she says is well worth listening to. After this paper, the district president, Mrs. Kinsman, introduced to the audience Mrs. Pennybacker, of Austin, Texas.

The assembly gave Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker, president of the general federation, a rousing ovation when she announced her subject as "The Spirit of Federation." She spoke in simple terms.

"Bring greetings from the Colorado Federation and from the president of that association," she said, "and I wish to express my own pleasure of being with the Wisconsin delegation for the third time."

She announced the plan for baby week—which is to take place March 1—when the committee of general federation and national children's bureaus will unite in interest of children of the country.

She advised club women of Wisconsin to make plans to carry on co-operative work during the baby week. She also appealed to the delegation of Wisconsin to be present at the federation held in New York in May.

Mrs. Pennybacker is one of the most popular presidents that the General Federation has ever had. She is very much devoted to the work and spends a great deal of time and money traveling about the country attending the various meetings. She is a woman of indomitable energy but of small physique, and it is a well known fact that she took lessons in physical culture and in public speaking so she might be able to be heard from the platform in her addresses before large audiences.

The last session was held on Friday morning and consisted mostly of unfinished business and club reports. There was one paper by Prof. J. L. Gillen of the University of Wisconsin on Women's Clubs and Rural Problems.

The reports showed that 211 clubs belong to the State Federation with a total of 1,446 members.

In connection with the meetings, there had been an Art Exhibit arranged at the Public Library and various pleasant diversions of a semi-social nature. A drive about the city in automobiles and a launch trip for the visiting ladies helped to make the meetings more interesting.

The committee in charge of the convention was Mrs. James G. Chandler, Racine; Mrs. W. R. Flach, La Crosse; Miss Zona Gale, Portage.

Philanthropic Club.
This organization will hold their first meeting of the season with Mrs. C. V. Kerch on Jefferson avenue. The subject of discussion will be the meeting of the State Federation, recently held at La Crosse. There will also be a musical program.

SECURE MADAM MONTESSORI AT STEVENS POINT NORMAL

Many club women have been interested in the method of teaching originated by Madam Montessori, and have taken up the study of their club papers. Two years ago an exponent of her ways of teaching was given a place on the program at the Wisconsin State Federation meeting and was accorded sufficient attention. Now it seems probable that Wisconsin women will be able to come into closer touch with her ideas, as she has accepted the offer to give a tour month course in her methods at the Normal school at Stevens Point. Madam Montessori and her staff will come early in January. Committees will be appointed next week and effort will be made to secure one hundred or more students for the course. The tuition fee was fixed tentatively at $100.

Madam Montessori is primarily a physician and it was in pursuance of her ideas in educating defective children that she originated her plan. It worked wonderfully well with subnormal children, but she enlarges the scope of the work to take in the normal child as well. The underlying thought of her method is to find out what the child loves to do, either physically or mentally, and show him how to do it well. It is in contradistinction to the old idea of the mother, who, when Johnny is quiet for a minute, sends to the elder sister, "Find out what Johnny is doing and tell him to stop it." The plan of the teacher of the Montessori method is to help Johnny to do what he is doing, better and better all the time, and to lead him from that kind of play to other kinds that he likes just as well. It is all in line with the present day thought of mothers and teachers to draw out the capabilities of the child and not to repress his impulses.

THE CITY MISSIONARY SOCIETY ENTERTAINED AT BELOIT

There is a spirit of federation in the air, a feeling that in union there is strength and this idea has reached the missionary societies of the different churches. The various societies at Beloit have already federated and they are so happy in the union that they are anxious to help others to do likewise. Last week they invited the ladies of the different missionary societies of the city to visit them at Beloit for discussion of their mutual aims. About twenty-five ladies accepted the invitation and listened to an afternoon Bible talk by Mrs. Berlin. This was followed by a talk by Mrs. Berry on the "Influence of Prayer." The unanimous consensus of thought among the ladies was that a federation of the missionary societies was more than possible in the near future.

The Ladies' Auxiliary.
A large and interested number of women gathered in the assembly room of the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday afternoon in response to the notice of meeting. The outline of their work was embodied in the following resolutions, which were signed by about sixty ladies.

Resolved, That we, the undersigned ladies of the city of Janesville, Wis., desiring to become charter members of "The Ladies' Auxiliary" to the Young Men's Christian Association of the city, and being eager to assist in our efforts toward the development of the body, the mind and the Christian character of the young boys and men of the city, do pledge ourselves to do all within our power.

Second. To stand by the program of moral and religious development carried on by the Association.

Third. To aids in keeping up and beautifying the Association rooms and building, and to enter into the social activities of the Association as requested from time to time.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. John Cunningham, who said that a great deal of work had been done by the old society of the Women's Auxiliary, and she hoped that for seven or eight years, and she hoped that all the old members would rally to the support of the new organization.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a man of thirty-five years. In my past life since the age of twenty-five, I have travelled what it is known as "the pace that kills" for a period covering five years. This pace cost a great deal of money, but I was one of those lucky fellows who escaped with his health not being vitally impaired. For the past four years of my life I have been sober and industrious. Although I have suffered a few adversities since, I feel no inclination leading me toward the past life.

Sometime ago I met a woman, whom I have since interested in a light way in which we have met several women and forgotten them. But there was something subtle about this woman that drew my interest toward her. She has over known adversity nor what it means to a mind that thinks the only real life there is consists of theaters, suppers, joy rides and fine wines. Of course you know these things can be enjoyed as diversions, but to give them continual practice, even in a light way, would probably be going back to the life I left behind. She is a woman of high ideals, but never up to make them real. Now, I am no saint, nor am I looking for an angle, and I know that women resent being preached to, but is there not some course that I can pursue so that this woman to realize that life is sacred to be wasted? This woman is of such a caliber that she has only a short step to take to make for a woman grand.

MONSIEUR X.

Make her love you. Look for a woman a desire to live up to her very best that is in her. This woman is just the kind, I should say, who would love deeply, and if you win this love she will do anything you wish. Preaching will accomplish nothing. When you feel that she loves you, tell her all about the life you lead, those five years and how bitter it is to you now, and tell her that you love her too much to see her wasting her life too. If she is willing to give it up and marry you, don't force her to go to the other extreme. Take her out where she can have a taste of gaiety, and never forget to be as loving a husband as you were a suitor.

met his he thought: "What honest eyes the girl has."

Julia felt uneasy, and worked steadily without looking up for a long time. She was conscious of Sutner's eyes upon her very often, and the knowledge helped to keep her disturbed.

As she was about to leave for home that night, he extended his hand, saying, "I am sorry I said anything about that handkerchief. It has worried you. Really, there is nothing to be worried about. I wouldn't have distressed you for the world."

"We'll say nothing more about it," she said and smiled.

Household Hints

THESE RELISHES/TASTY WITH WINTER MEATS

In place of the old-fashioned piccalilli this year, try making a relish of green tomatoes from which the seeds have been removed, add six red and yellow mangos, cut up and salt the tomatoes, and run through a food grinder. In quantity have six mangos to a gallon tomatoes. As tastes vary in spicing, individual tastes like will govern the use of brown sugar, vinegar and spices in cooking.

Tomato Relish—Use three dozen sweet peppers, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon celery seed, one-half teaspoon cloves, allspice, cinnamon and nutmeg, two cups best vinegar, one and one-half dozen green tomatoes, sugar, half cup dissolved flour, salt and peel tomatoes. Grind onions and peppers. Add all the other ingredients except sugar, which is added when the beans are done. Boil until beans are done well. When ready to remove from fire add the dissolved flour.

Beans and Tomatoes and Cabbage Piccalilli—One peck green tomatoes, sliced and salted, put in a basket and let drain over night. If the flavor of onions is desired, take eight, four each, green peppers cut in small pieces, one peck green or yellow beans cut in half and cover with vinegar, add one pound dark brown sugar, one tablespoon of each kind of spice, put into a muslin bag; stew slowly about an hour or until the beans are soft. Put in eight jars and they will keep all winter.

Chili Sauce—Eight quarts tomatoes, three cups of peppers, two cups of onions, three cups sugar, one cup of salt, one half quarts vinegar, three teaspoons of cloves, same of cinnamon, two teaspoons each of ginger and nutmeg. Boil three hours. Chop tomatoes, peppers and onions very fine. Bottle up and seal.

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Spiced Peaches—One peck peaches, peel, and boil ten minutes, lift out carefully and place in jar. Make syrup of four pounds light brown sugar, one quart vinegar. Tie up cloth and strain cinnamon and boil with syrup twenty minutes, then pour over peaches in jar. Next morning pour off this syrup and reheat. After syrup has been reheated and poured over peaches the nine mornings, peaches are ready to be eaten in jars.

Green Grape Chutney—Mix two quarts seeded green grapes, two quarts pared chopped apples, two cups raisins, one pint sugar, one cup lemon juice, one cup vinegar, one tablespoon salt, one teaspoon paprika, one ounce each of mustard and ginger, let stand all night in earthenware dish that is cool, boil in double boiler five hours. Mincemeat Pickles—Chop fine one-half peck green tomatoes, drain and allow to stand, add allspice, one pound cleaned currants, one pound seeded raisins, one-fourth peck peeled, chopped, tart apples, three pounds brown sugar, one-half cup cider vinegar. ## PLANS FOR WEDDING OF PRESIDENT STIR SOCIAL WASHINGTON

Marriage Will be Latter Part of November, Allowing Honeymoon Before Congress Convenes.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Oct. 13.—The wedding plans of President Wilson and Mrs. Galt, including interest to social Washington. From the White House there has come no statement concerning the date of the wedding. It is understood Mrs. Galt has not yet chosen the time, but it is believed she will decide upon some day late in November. It was thought it might not be until December, but congress assembled early that month. So it has been suggested that the wedding might be held so the honeymoon would be ended before congress convenes.

It is believed the honeymoon will be a quiet one, and the couple will furnish the Potomac and continue along the seaboard to some isolated island estate.

Dr. Grayson Best Man?

It is said now that Dr. Grayson may be the president's best man.

The wedding will be in Mrs. Galt's residence, and since it is not a big house only a relatively small number of most distinguished friends is likely to be invited. Mrs. Galt is an Episcopalian, the president is a Presbyterian, and so, it is said, by those who ought to know, no decision has been reached as yet as to the denominational service.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception surpassing any that has been given there under the present administration. To this will be invited all the notables in Washington, including the officials of the government and the representatives from foreign governments, the friends of both families, who will go to pay their respects to the "first lady of the land."

Mrs. Galt in Business.

Mrs. Galt, who was Miss Bolling of Wytheville, Va., before her marriage to Norman Galt of this city, was one of seven children. Her mother, Mrs. William B. Bolling and Miss Bessie Bolling, made their home here in Cordova, and their family connection is a large one and closely united. Her sisters are Mrs. Alexander Galt, Mrs. Mathew H. Maury of Anniston, Ala., and Miss Ruthie Bolling. One brother, John Randolph Bolling, makes his home here with his mother and sister, and manages the Galt Jewelry establishment, of which Mrs. Galt has been sole owner since the death of her husband. Mrs. Galt has a gift for keeping secrets. When Washington ran over its morning coffee this morning, the next "first lady of the land" the surprise was as great among her close personal friends as anywhere. Although well aware that the president greatly admired her, not one friend had been taken into her confidence.

Mrs. Galt, although a contributor to local charities, never has given much time to organization work nor has she shown interest in "movements." She rides occasionally and plays a good game of golf, but is more often seen driving her motor around town than on the links. She is fond of the theater, of dancing and of dinners.

She is one of the best dressed women in Washington, and the widow's weeds which she wore for years added to her air of distinction.

She received only the finishing school education usually given to young girls, and never has been interested in high college women's interests nor does she belong to a suffrage organization. All Mrs. Galt's friends lay emphasis on the sweetness of her disposition, her bright, sunny nature. She is fond of the theater, of dancing and of dinners.

She is the closest personal friend of Miss Gertrude Gordon, the reported fiancee of Dr. Grayson, and Dr.

Grayson has known her for a long time. She attracted Miss Bones, the president's cousin, when the two were introduced, and Miss Bones said everywhere she thought Mrs. Galt was one of the most charming women she ever had met. Miss Bones sang her praises so enthusiastically that President Wilson and his daughter expressed a desire to meet her.

Distinctly Northern Bird.

The world's migrating champion, according to Prof. Cooke, is the Arctic tern. It nests far north as land has been discovered or a bird can find anything stable on which to build its nest. A nest of this bird has been found within seven and one-half degrees of the North pole, and it contained a downy chick surrounded by a wall of new snow that had been scooped out of the nest by one of the parent birds.

The Stigma of Disease.

The ancients had queer superstitions about insanity. Even today ignorant people harbor a sneaking suspicion that this disease, or rather the disordered group under the term insanity, is a kind of evil spell cast upon the victim.

Of course the causes of insanity are pretty well known. Bad heredity—the misdeeds of our ancestors—and bad habits about cover the question. Alcoholism, syphilis, certain other infections, abuse of drugs, and bad heredity are the factors of insanity, epilepsy and idiocy.

But there is a certain stigma attached to the insane. We still look on the insane as at the family that has one more case of insanity, and perhaps with some reason, than have for looking askance at the family that has typhoid fever or consumption or neurasthenia or liver complaint, for these troubles, too, come from the sins of our fathers and our own sins.

People feel no particular shame in having neuritis or flat feet, yet these popular maladies are just as surely due to individual and familial weakness, as is insanity. A doctor can suggest hospital care for goitre or appendicitis with perfect assurance, but when it comes to the treatment of a case of insanity, he has no idea about the bush, because of the common antipathy to hospitals for the insane. We have been ushered unceremoniously out of more than one home where we insisted that an insane patient should be taken to a hospital properly equipped to render the best treatment.

Perhaps it is not generally realized that a very large number of patients admitted to hospitals for the insane recover completely in a few months or years and return to their homes, and if additional time is required to remain well the rest of their lives. Sometimes, it is true, such persons seem a little queer—any of us seem that way when watched expectantly. After

SIDE TALKS

—By RUTH CAMERON

What Would You Do? When we were out riding the other day we noticed that the oft rear wheel of the machine in front of us was wiggling about in a weird and wonderful way.

"Just look at that wheel!" said the motorist's wife.

"Yes," said the motorist, quite unexcitedly.

"Don't you see how dreadfully it wiggles?"

"Yes, aren't you going to tell them?"

"He's still frozen up."

"I'm not," said the motorist, firmly.

"The last time I did that I got a North Pole stare. I'm still frozen up on that subject."

"But supposing something happens to them?"

"They probably know all about it now."

"They may not."

"Somebody else will tell them."

The motorist shrugged his shoulders, blew his horn, and turned down a side road.

And the machine with the wiggly rear wheel was away, unwarned.

What would you have done in a case like that, reader friends?

We're Often On The Horns of This Dilemma.

It is a dilemma which often arises. I don't mean, of course, that one frequently sees autos with wiggly rear wheels, but that one is often put in the position of knowing that something is wrong with a stranger's clothes, or person, or equipment, and of not knowing whether the person is aware of the defect and would or would not be informed of it.

For instance, you see a woman with her waist unbelted in the back. Should you tell her? Some will answer: "Of course!" and some will equal positivity will say, "Don't you do that? You may get your head bitten off for you."

Personally I think it is one's duty to risk that calamity, inform lot of the fact, and unabashedly as possible, offer one's assistance (I am speaking just now to my own sex, of course).

Would You Want Your Wheel to Fall Off?

Apply the rule of "As Ye Would."

Wouldn't you want the chance to stop making yourself ridiculous, or repair a dangerous wheel before it fell off?

And, on the other hand, let the recipient of such information not fall for the Rule. Rule suppose he knows already that the wheel is wiggly; even suppose half a dozen people have already told him of it, let him remember that his information is actuated only by the best of intentions, respect them as he would want his own good intentions respected, and not sour the milk of human kindness by an ungracious response.

To my mind, the man who gave the motorist the North Pole stare would be morally responsible if, when the motorist should withhold a warning in some other case, an accident should happen.

J. S. VAN ETTA WINS EXPOSITION PRIZES

Janesville Man Wins Many Awards At San Francisco in the Clydesdale Exhibits.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—Although Wisconsin's representation in the livestock division at the Panama-Pacific exposition was much restricted by recent rulings some of the most coveted prize awards have already been captured by hogger stockmen. In the Clydesdale classes, among the exhibitors from this state, J. S. Van Etta, from Janesville, won a sixth, six thirds, five seconds, three firsts, and one grand championship awards. His stallion, Charter Oak, which had previously appeared at the Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin state fairs, was accorded the premier honors of the show.

Members of the "Wisconsin Livestock Brokers' association, who are familiar with exhibits, which have been and are being made on this year's circuit, feel certain that this record would have been repeated in a number of other classes had not the exclusion ruling been made. Some hope has been held out to them that the authorities will permit the showing of cattle and swine from this state. There has not been an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Wisconsin since early in March, which fact makes the ruling work a hardship upon stockmen.

MADE IN JANESEVILLE SHOW PLAN MATURING

Exhibit To Be Held Oct. 30 To Nov. 1 At Auditorium—Retailers To Put On Big Sale Too.

Plans for the big "Made in Janesville" exhibit under the auspices of the Janesville Commercial club and Lower City manufacturers are rapidly rounding and taking definite form. The show will be held at the Auditorium the first week of November, beginning October 30, and continuing to November 6.

City Engineers Korch is at present working floor plans for the different exhibit spaces and aisles. A number of novel features in arrangements are to be incorporated in the plans. It was announced by the Commercial club today that requests for floor space would be allotted in the order received.

Over fifty letters explaining the purpose of the show were sent out to day to local manufacturers from the Commercial club. The promotion committee, H. H. Bliss, H. M. Decker, A. Jackson and Hugo M. Orwig, is in charge of the exhibit.

It is expected that every manufacturing firm of the city will show the product of their respective factories. Aside from a commercial standpoint the exhibit has many other features. Previous displays of similar nature have proved highly successful and members of the committee in charge are striving every effort to make the present display eclipse anything previously attempted.

In addition Janesville merchants will, throughout the week, put on their annual fall bazaar and when cut prices and bargains will prevail during the week. The retailers committee, Amos Rehberg, chairman, P. J. Luby, Max Meisel, Louis Levy, Joseph M. Connors, Sidney Bostwick and Harry Keating, are working up ideas for this feature.

SOUGHT PEST HOUSE; WENT TO TAYLOR'S

"Stranger Wasn't So Far From Right," It Relojder to Story Income Tax Assessor Tells on Himself.

"I saw a man wandering around my place the other day," said F. A. Taylor, county assessor of incomes for a group of men recently. "I went out and asked him what he wanted and he said he was looking for the pest house. I told him he had turned too quick; he was two blocks out of the way."

"He wasn't so far from right after all," was the quick rejoinder of one of the group, who perhaps had some grievance under the income tax law.

CLUB PAYS TRIBUTE TO CHAS. S. CLELAND

Twilight Club Sessione Saddened by Passing of Its Treasurer and Veteran Member.

The session of the Twilight club last evening was saddened and the members felt sorrowful because from the fact that on that very afternoon all that was mortal of Charles S. Cleland, for many years the treasurer of the organization, and a most efficient and faithful member, had been laid at rest. As was recalled by Judge F. L. Clemons, and passed by unanimous vote, it was drawn by Alexander E. Matheson and reads as follows:

"We regret that the untimely anniversary of the passing of our Twilight club, when we have present with us our much loved founder, Professor D. D. Mayne, our joy is mellowed as we think of our fellow-member, Charles S. Cleland, who was buried today."

Mr. Cleland was treasurer of our organization. His services were always efficient and rendered in fine spirit. During all the years of our existence he labored faithfully to promote the growth and prosperity of the Twilight club.

Mr. Cleland was in a marked degree an all-round citizen. He was interested in every effort for good, and people turned instinctively to him in times of public trouble. Within his walls was a man of most genial disposition and attractive character. He was universally liked and is now universally mourned. We rejoice in this opportunity to pay to his memory the tribute which a man of such clean life and exalted character deserves.

Therefore, Resolved by the members of the Twilight club, at a regular meeting held on Tuesday, the 12th day of October, 1915, that we express our sense of loss and bereavement in the death of our fellow-member, Charles S. Cleland; that we make permanent record of our affection for him, our appreciation of his character, and our admiration for him as a man and a soldier.

Be it Further Resolved that we extend to his surviving sister our sincere condolences and our deep sympathy in her bereavement.

Be it Further Resolved that these resolutions be preserved among the records of our organization; that a copy thereof be sent to the surviving sister; and that and they be printed in the Janesville Daily Gazette.

Unanimously adopted by rising vote.

MILWAUKEE WAKES UP THAT SHE'S BEEN PAYING PENSIONS TO THE DEAD

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 12.—Milwaukee County supervisors object to paying pension to dead persons.

They discovered they had been doing this for many years last week so to day a resolution was introduced at the meeting of the board of supervisors which provides that all blind persons who draw pensions from the county present themselves in person at the office of the county clerk.

The resolution, it is said, was discovered by District Attorney Zabel that the county had for years been paying blind persons who have been dead for over a decade. A relative would call for the monthly sum even after the afflicted person died. The district attorney stated that thousands of dollars have been paid out in this manner by the county during the past ten years.

Freshmen entering drill this year were authorized to purchase the new olive drab service uniform in place of the dressy blue costumes used here-tofore.

HOMAGE TO COLUMBUS BY LOCAL K. OF C'S

Janesville Council Honor Patron on Anniversary of Discovery of the Americas.

Members of Carroll Council No. 506, Knights of Columbus last evening definitely observed the anniversary of the discovery of the island of San Salvador and the western hemisphere in their council chambers and club quarters in the Myers block. Altogether more than two hundred and fifty were in attendance.

Following an excellent two course supper at eight o'clock, the evening was given over to a patriotic program for the following two hours. The Rev. Dr. William Mahoney, assistant Dean E. H. Reilly, pastor of St. Patrick's congregation, was the speaker of the evening. The priest divided the discourse under two headings, the first, showing his eloquent review of the life of Christopher Columbus and the second, a denunciation of diverse nations crumbling factors in the everyday life of the American people.

Miss Barbara Schlater gave a piano solo and Miss Ruth Dorothy delighted the gathering with a declamatory address. Mrs. James Heffernan appeared in a pleasing piano and vocal solo and was forced to return for encore. Edward Maiden, past grand knight, was toastmaster of the occasion.

Grand Knight Fred Schmidt in a short welcoming address, announced that it was the plan of the recently elected officers to give such gatherings monthly throughout the winter. After the program the council room was cleared of tables and chairs and given over to dancing until 10 p.m. For those who did not care to dance club games were started in the club rooms on the floor below.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She Made up a Mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to Bring Back Color, Gloss, Thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

HOW TO CLEAR AWAY PIMPLES

Bathe your face for several minutes with resinol soap and hot water, then apply a little resinol ointment very gently. Let this stay on ten minutes, and wash off with resinol soap and more hot water, finishing with a dash of cold water to close the pores. Do this once or twice a day, and you will be astonished to find how quickly the healing resinol medication soothes and cleanses the pores, removes pimples and blackheads, and leaves the complexion clear and velvety.

Resinol ointment and resinol soap stop itching instantly and speedily heal skin humors, sores, burns, wounds and chafing. Sold by all druggists.

SOAP FOR BABY'S TENDER SKIN

The regular use of resinol soap is usually enough to prevent those distressing rashes and chafings to which most babies are subject. This is so, first, because resinol soap is absolutely pure and free from harsh alkali, and second, because it contains the resinol medication, on which so many physicians rely for skin troubles.

Lung Trouble Yielded to This Medicine

If you are suffering with serious lung trouble, it will pay to fully investigate Eckman's Alterative, a remedy which has caused many recoveries. One follows:

5323 Girard Ave., Phila., Pa.
Gentlemen—In the winter of 1903 I suffered an attack of Grippe, followed by Pneumonia, and was taken by Lung Trouble. In the winter of 1904 I had a cough, night sweats, fever and raised quantities of awful-looking sputum, and had had many hemorrhages, one time three in three successive days. Three physicians treated me. I was ordered to the mountains, but did not go. Eckman's Alterative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity I had the first quiet night's sleep for weeks. My improvement was gradual, and I gained strength and well-being rapidly. I never had another hemorrhage and my cough gradually lessened until entirely gone. I am perfectly well.

—Anna F. LOUGHAN.
Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung infections and up-holding health generally. Containing no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitute. Small size, $1; regular size, $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.

Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.
Sold by Smith Drug Co., McCue & Buss and People's Drug Co., in Janesville.

Thin Folks Who Want to Get Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More.

"I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Most thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are, when the powers of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, much of the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal, amount of fat, the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can probably best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a careful combination of six splendid assimilative agents. Taken with meals they mix with the food to turn the sugars and starches of what you have eaten into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect has been in many cases reported remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by all druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous irritation, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

The Battle-Cry

"I reckon I know what ye mean," he said. "Young Jeb, he's asked ye ter warn me off. Why don't Jeb carry his own messages?"

"Milt," she gravely reminded him, resting her hand for a moment on his coat-sleeve, "it's more serious than that. Jeb ordered me to send his sister back to the cabin. You are having an education. I want her to have one. She has the right to it. I love her very dearly, Milt, and if you are a friend you won't rob her of her chance."

The boy's eyes flashed. "An' ye're goin' ter send her back thar ter dwell amongst them razorback hawks an' houn'-dawgs an' fleas?" he demanded spritely.

"That depends on you, Jeb is the head of his family. I can't keep her without his consent. I had to promise him that you shouldn't visit her."

For a moment the heir to the McBriar leadership stood twisting the toe of his heavy boot in the dust and apparently contemplating the little rings it stamped out. Then he raised his eyes and contemplatively studied the crests of ridges softening with the coming of sunset.

At last he inquired, "What has Dawn got ter say?"

"Dawn hasn't said much," Juanita faltered, remembering the girl's tirade, then she confessed: "You see, Milt, just now Dawn is thinking of herself as a Havey and of you as a McBriar. All I ask is that you won't try to see her while she's here at the school—not, at all events, until things are different."

The boy was wrestling with youth's unwillingness to be coerced.

"An' let Dawn think that her brother skeered me off?" he questioned at last with a note of rising defiance.

"Dawn sha'n't think that. She shall know that you have acted with a gentleman's generosity, Milt—and because I've asked you to do it."

"Hain't I good enough ter keep company with Fletch McNash's gal?" The lad was already persuaded, but his stubbornness fired this parting shot.

"It's not a question of that, Milt, and you know it," declared Juanita. "It's just that one of your people killed one of his. Put yourself in Jeb's place."

Still for a while the boy stood there scowling down at the ground, but at last he raised his face and nodded.

"It's a bargain, ma'am, but mind I only says I won't see her hyar. Some day I'll make Jeb pay for it."

He mounted and rode away while the lazy, hazy sweetness of the smoky mists hung splendidly to the ridges and the sunset flamed at his back.

Juanita never knew what details of the incident came to Old Milt's ears, but when next the head of the house passed her on the road he spoke with a diminished cordiality, and when she stopped him he commented: "I hear ye're a-runnin' a Havey school over that now. Little Milt tells me ya've warned him off yore place."

She tried to explain, and though he pretended to accept all she said in good humor, she knew in her heart she had made a powerful and bitter enemy.

One afternoon Anse Havey, wandering through the timber on his own side of the ridge, came upon a lone hunter, and when he drew near it proved to be young Milt McBriar.

"Mornin', Milt," said Havey. "I didn't know ya ever went huntin' over here."

The boy, who in feud etiquette was a trespasser, met the scrutiny with a level glance.

"I was a-gunnin' for boomerangs," he said, using the local phrase for red squirrels of the hills. "I reckon I ain't hardly got no license ter go gunnin' on yore land."

Anse Havey sat down on a log and looked up at the boy steadily. At last he said gravely:

"Hunt as much as ye like, Milt, only be heedful not to start no fires."

Milt nodded and turned to go, but the older man called him back.

This idea had for a long time been vaguely taking shape in his mind, and when he met Young Milt in the woods and proposed uniting to save Juanita's school he was laying the cornerstone for that future alliance.

"I don't know what ye means," responded the boy, and the gaze that passed between them was that of two men who can look direct into any eye. "I lowed it would astonish ye," went on Anse. "Back of the new schoolhouse that's still full of shavin' an' loose timber there's a little stretch of dry woods that comes right down to the back door. Somebody has done laid a trail of shavin' an' leaves in the brush there an' soaked 'em with coal-oil. Some fellers aims to burn down that schoolhouse tonight."

"Did ye tell Miss Holland?" demanded Milt in voice of deep anxiety.

"No, I ain't named it to her," said Anse with seeming indifference in his face, at which the lad's blood came without having spoken of his purpose at home. The night was sharp and moonless, with no light save that which came from the coldly glittering stars, and Anse and Young Milt crouched for hours, knee to knee in the dead thickets, keeping watch.

At last they both saw a creeping figure which was only a vague shadow moving among shadows, and they peered with straining eyes and raised rifles. But the shadow fell very still, and since it was only by its movement that they could detect it, they waited in vain.

What hint of being watched was given out no one could say. The woods were quiet, and the two kneeling figures in the laurel made no sound. The other men, waiting at their separated posts, were equally invisible and noiseless, but some intangible premonition had come to the shadow which had lost itself in the impenetrable blackness and began its retreat with its object unaccomplished.

Young Milt went back to his house in the cold mists of dawn. No shot had been fired, no face recognized, but the Havey and the McBriar both knew that the school had been saved by their joint vigilance.

Some days later the news of that night watch leaked through to Jerry Everson, who bore the tidings to Juanita, and she wrote a note to Anse Havey asking him to come over and let her express her thanks in person.

The mail rider brought her brief reply penned in a hand of copybook script.

"I don't take any credit. I only did what any other man would do, and young Milt McBriar did as much as I did. Thank me if you want to. It would only be awkward for me to come over there.

Respectfully, ANSE HAVEY.

Old Milt McBriar heard of his son's part in the watching of the school and brooded blackly as he gnawed at the stem of his pipe, but he said nothing. The boy had been sent away to college and had had every advantage. Now he had unwittingly but none the less surely, turned his rifle on one of his father's hirelings bent on his father's work, for the oil-soaked kindling had been laid at Old Milt's command.

The thing did not tend to make the leader of the McBriars partial to the innovations from down below.

One day, when Juanita went down to the post office, which nestled unobtrusively behind the single counter of the shack store at the gap, she found a letter directed in a hand which set her heart beating and revived many old memories.

She climbed to the crest, sat down under the poplar, and began to read the letter from the man she had sent away.

He said that he had made a sincere effort to reconcile himself to her decision which exiled him. The effort had failed. He had been to the Mediterranean and the East. His letter concluded:

"Can you not find it in your heart to be touched by my devotion? Not only happiness, but peace dwells where you are, and am coming to you."

"Do not forbid me, for I am coming anyway. I am coming because I must; because I love you."

She sat for a long time gazing at the distances and shivered a little in the bite of the raw air. Then she looked up and saw a figure at her side. It was Bad Anse Havey.

He bowed and stripped off his coat, which, without asking permission, he threw around her shivering shoulders.

"I didn't aim to intrude on ye," he said slowly. "I didn't know ya was up here. Do ye come often?"

"Very often," she answered, folding the letter and putting it back into its envelope. "When I first came to the Widow Everson's I discovered this tree, and it seemed to beckon to me to come up. Look!" She rose and pointed off with a gauntleted hand. "I can stand here and see the fortifications of my two enemies. There is your place and there is Milt McBriar's."

She smiled with unconscious archness. "But I'm not going to let you be my enemy any more," she went on. "I've decided that you have got to be my friend, whether you want to or not—and what I decide upon must be."

Bad Anse Havey stood looking at her eyes with the disconcerting steadiness of gaze that she always found it difficult to sustain, but his only response was a sober "I'm obliged to you."

Perhaps that letter, with its old reminders had brought back a little of the old self's innocent coquetry. She stood with her gloved hands in the deep pockets of her sweater jacket with her coat hanging from her shoulders. About her deep-violet eyes and sensitive lips lurked a subtle appeal for friendship—perhaps, though she did not know it—for love.

She had behaved abominably to you, Mr. Havey," she confessed. "It's natural that you should refuse me forgive-ness."

"I want to have a word with ye, Milt," he said soberly. "I ain't never heard that neither the McBriars nor the Haveys countenanced settin' fire to dwellin'-houses, have you?"

"I don't know what ye means," reshould refuse to let you refuse. We are going to be friends. I am going to smash your old feud to splinters and I'm going to beat you, and just the same we are going to be friends."

Again his reply was brief.

"I'm obliged to ye."

"You have been very good to me," she went on, and the note of banter left her voice; "and you refused to let me thank you."

For a moment he was silent, then he replied awkwardly: "I reckon it's pretty easy to be good to you." After that she heard him saying in a very soft voice:

"One of the first things I remembers is being fetched up here by mammy when I was a spindlin' little chap. She used to bring me up here and tell me Indian stories. Sometimes my pappy came with us, but mostly it was just my mammy an' me."

"Your father was a soldier, wasn't he?" she asked.

"Yes. He was a captain in Morgan's command. When the war ended he come on back here an' relapsed. I reckon I'd oughter be right smart ashamed of that, but somehow I'm mighty proud of it. He lowed that what was good enough for his folks was good enough for him."

Young Milt went back to his house in the cold mists of dawn. No shot had been fired, no face recognized, but the Havey and the McBriar both knew that the school had been saved by their joint vigilance.

"Can you not find it in your heart to be touched by my devotion? Not only happiness, but peace dwells where you are, and am coming to you."

"Do not forbid me, for I am coming anyway. I am coming because I must; because I love you."

She sat for a long time gazing at the distances and shivered a little in the bite of the raw air. Then she looked up and saw a figure at her side. It was Bad Anse Havey.

HEAVY WAR LOSSES PUTS PROSPERITY TO LABORING MEN

Huge Drains On Working Class Results In Increased Wages for the Remaining in Germany.
BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Berlin, Oct. 13.—The huge drains and losses of thirteen months of war have had the paradoxical effect of placing the German workingman in a position of prosperity unexampled in his history, or raising his wages by and large to a point they never attained before, and of almost completely solving his non-employment problem.

The faster men at the front have fallen and holes in the ranks had to be filled, the better has become the situation of the men at home, the higher have mounted the savings banks deposits of the few doing the work of the former many.

One man, however, from the ranks of workers still tramps men whose places have not been filled, yet whose work has had to be done. The work has been done, in part, by overtime labor, in part, by workers whose value—and in consequence whose pay—increased about in proportion to the withdrawals.

It is the very fact that the worker who is still at home is having an unprecedented hexagon has created a problem which his leaders, if not he, is studying and worrying over—the problem of what is to become of him and of how to take care of him when the war is over, when hundreds of thousands of his fellow come streaming back from the front, when the German manufacture of war materials suddenly stops.

Some think the problem is to be solved by kindly employers who will immediately take back their former employees, even though business and trade do not at once resume their pre-war volume. Others, less optimistic, are far-sightedly negotiating with the government already and are asking that the plan when hostilities cease the hundred of thousands not regularly employed as soldiers shall be kept on the rolls for eight or twelve weeks till economic matters adjust themselves and the men can get back to work.

The organized trades are piling up small fortunes in their treasuries again. At the time when they shall have to begin accounting for the non-employment benefits paid just now have dwindled to the vanishing point. And the government is practically pledged to supply hundreds of millions of marks, if necessary, toward this same end.

The labor situation in Berlin today is more than a fair measure by which to gauge the situation throughout the Empire. More than ever since the beginning of the war there has been an influx of workers from the country, attracted by the high wages prevailing, especially in those trades covering the army needs.

The country has also had a marked increase of men unfit for military service than the city. The needs of the army, therefore, which have called for more men, the men who are fit, has created a greater shortage of workers in the small towns than in the cities, and the labor situation, from the men's point of view, in the former is in general even better than in the latter.

In Berlin the situation never was easier—from the standpoint of the worker—as the following figures will attest:

At the great Central Employment Bureau maintained by the principal branches of labor in Berlin, between 40 and 50 trades are represented. At the end of the first week in September fifteen of these trades reported that no one member was out of employment. Forty others reported from one to 184 members unemployed, and entitled to unemployment support. The total number receiving this support was 40; six trades had one man apiece; four had two men, and three had three. The unemployment on November 12, 1914, numbered 8,406 among the trades represented.

The city of Berlin assists in supporting the unemployed, and adds on an average of 50 per cent. of what the trades themselves pay out of this sum. Yet during the week ending August 21 last the city was forced to expand through this channel but one-half 1,750 marks, while during the week ending November 2, 1914, unemployment had been so great that the city's share had been one-half of 54,800 marks.

The amounts paid out to unemployed trade workers through the Central Employment Bureau on the one hand during the week ending November 2, 1914, and on the other during the week ending August 21, indicate that unemployment has diminished with the advance of the war. The following figures covering some of the more important trades serve as good examples:

Unemployed metal workers received in the November week 6,878.20 marks; in August, 572 marks; building trades workers in November, 1,650 marks; in August, 220 marks; lithographers, 211.60—50 marks; printers, 1,600—50 marks; tailors, 1,744—500 marks; printers, 1,744—500 marks; tobacco workers, 1,470 marks; wood workers, 1,470 marks; typewriters, 1,470 marks; telephone company employees, 3,482.13—16.10 marks.

One reason for the decrease in, since the disappearance of unemployment, has naturally in the increasing number of men who have been drawn into the army. In such trades as ship workers have increased markedly; the places of some of the absentees have been filled—but never all of the places.

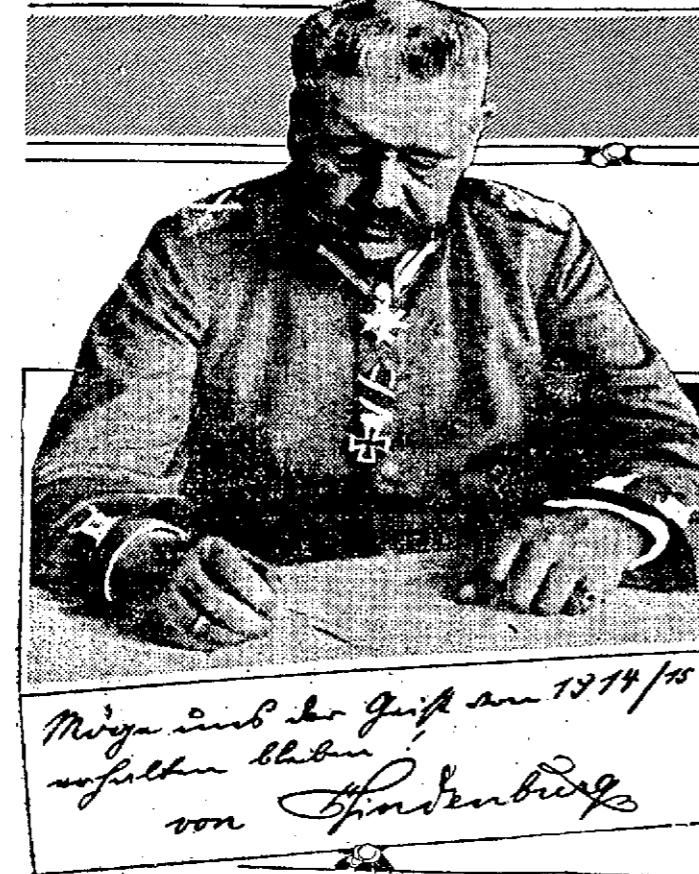

Thus figures showing the number employed on July 1, 1914, and the number drawn for military service up to June 30, 1915, when totalled together, in a majority of cases add up to more than the total employed on July 1, 1914. In other words, industrial recruits have not found but never enough to keep wages from

SEEK GOVERNMENT TO DREDGE LOWER
FOX RIVER FOR LAND

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS
Oshkosh, Wis., Oct. 13.—Agitation has been started to have the United States government dredge the lower Fox River and lower the lake Menasha one foot. The plan is to raise $100,000 by popular subscription among the owners of river lands. A tentative plan for doing the work has been submitted to the Wolf and Fox river Protective association by Major B. Ferguson, United States engineer, stationed at Milwaukee. The result of the proposed dredging would allow boulders to have as good a state of water as at present and the water would not wash away the land above the dam.

TREAT THE CRIMINAL AS MORAL WEAKLING

Judge Frick Gives Interesting Address at Prison Association Meeting at Oakland.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 13.—Taking the ground that a criminal is not a normal human being but is one who is morally deficient and opposing the indiscriminate extension of the "honor convict" system, Judge F. E. Frick of the Supreme court of Utah, here today addressed the convention of the American Prison association.

"As soon as a moral weakling is discovered our first efforts should be to overcome his weakness before it forces him into an active criminal career," said Judge Frick. "I entertain little hope of ever reforming a confirmed criminal."

"In justice to a large majority of our prison officials it should be said, however, that they do not endorse the indiscriminate application of the so-called honor system."

EAU CLAIRE BUSINESS MEN ON BOOSTER TOUR

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE!

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 12.—A party of Eau Claire business men left today for a booster trip through Mondovi and surrounding intervening towns. The trip was planned by the Civic and Commerce association, and it is a success, similar trips will be made to surrounding towns by business men. The committee of business men who had charge of the trip consisted of W. A. Parker, R. L. Neader and James Middleton.

"We shall never be able to lessen crime very much until we heed and comply with the gospel of international good-will, teaching you the secret of Anglo-American peace, proving to you the power of international disarmament, and helping to gather your shattered nationalities into a United States of Europe. How often! But ye would not say, no matter who among you is to blame, we too, must suffer in your agony. The national peace of this American Republic is threatened by your madness. The best red blood of the Canadian Dominion is being soaked into your battlefields because of the blood-guiltiness of your sin."

"But when this world-storm of Europe past, when this red rain has refreshed the roots of Europe's next vegetation, the United States and Canada, their common democracy made stronger by their common experiences, shall come again. The council chamber of the nations, and with the released democracies of the warring peoples of Europe, shall speak the doors of the autocrats and the despots and the war lords and all that damning system of militarism that has cursed Europe for two thousand years.

No More War Lords.

"Before this world-war is over these two free democracies of North America shall have paid the price of war; it may be the United States as well as Canada shall have paid in blood. And, then, not the United States and Canada alone, but all the democratic nations of the world over, shall have something to say to the war lords. And they will insist that the world is too small for war lords or for war; that in the safe neighborhood of civilized nations there can be no longer any room for the wild beasts of Europe's war jungle, and that the broken-down war-nationalisms of Europe shall give place to North America's international experiment."

AUCTION SALE!

Compare the attendance of auction sales that are advertised in the columns of the Janesville Gazette and those which are not.

The comparison is very conspicuously in favor of the value of advertising your sale through the newspaper.

The reason is that the public prefers to read of these sales at home where the entire contents can be thoroughly digested and considered. The 7,500 homes reached by the Gazette make possible a wider radius from which customers can be drawn.

Backing up your bills with two or more advertisements in the Gazette is a wise expenditure of money. It has been demonstrated this season that money saved in this way was lost a hundred fold at the sale.

If you are interested in or contemplating an auction sale, send to the Janesville Gazette for the booklet entitled, "Auctions, and how to prepare for them." It's free. The Gazette's auction directory is also free to our subscribers.
